EYSTNA'S PARENTS WIN FIGHT TO REOPEN INQUEST

Coroner cites CPS 'apology' as reason for changing her decision

Court Reporter

star@hertsexnews.co.uk

THE parents of murdered mum-to-be Eystna Blunnie have won their two-year legal fight to have an inquest into her death reopened.

Kevin and Susan Blunnie claim their 20-year-old daughter's life might have been saved but for failures by Essex Police and other agencies which were revealed in a government commissioned domestic homicide review published last year.

Speaking on behalf of the family after Tuesday's decision, solicitor Matthew Gold said: "Hopefully any failings will come to light and most importantly we hope that lessons will be learned from the investigation so that other victims of domestic violence will not suffer the same terrible fate as Eystna did."

Catering student Eystna, of Halling Hill, Harlow, was found fatally injured by the side of the road in Howard Way in the early hours of June 27, 2012. She was taken to Princess Alexandra Hospital but doctors were unable to save her or her unborn baby, Rose.

Arrested

Her former boyfriend, Tony McLernon, 25, of North Grove, Harlow, was arrested and charged with murder and child destruction. He was found guilty at Chelmsford Crown Court of both charges and sentenced to life in prison with a recommendation that he serve 27 years before being eligible for parole.

An inquest into Eystna's death was not held at the time because there had been a full

Hospice to build new office block

Two-storey building needed to cope with growth in services

star@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A NEW office and storage facility is to be built at St Clare Hospice as it struggles to cope with the rapid growth in the services it provides.

The two-storey building will replace a couple of old and dilapidated sheds at the Hastingswood site after Epping Forest Council approved the scheme.

Since 2013 St Clare has enhanced its day therapy facilities, expanded its team of specialist nurses and launched a new 'Hospice at Home' service which enables people to receive end-of-life care in their own homes.

The number of people receiving care has also increased by 300 per cent.

St Clare chief executive Tanya Curry said this week she was delighted the scheme had won the backing of planners.

"The past few years have been an incredibly exciting period of development," she said. "The number of people we are able to support has tripled to more than 1,400 a year but to achieve this our staffing levels have been increasing across the hospice."

"As a stop-gap measure our retail team moved out to rented accommodation four years ago, but with the ongoing growth in our services we are still desperately in need of more office space.

"The purpose-built facility means that we can save money on rent by bringing our retail office back on site and it will free up space in the main building for our expanding community, day therapy and family support teams."

The building will have storage space for vital clinical equipment and fundraising resources, whilst the upper floor will provide an open plan office for some of the hospice's essential support and administrative staff. The design also includes dedicated facilities for the maintenance and gardening team.

Ms Curry added: "Our vision is to be able to provide the right care at the right time and in the right place for every family who needs it. But we are not there yet and with an ageing population and people living longer we need to continue to develop and expand our services to achieve our vision."

Following a detailed consultation process, Weston Homes has been appointed to undertake the construction project.

Chief executive Bob Weston, said: "We are delighted to support St Clare Hospice with the new two-storey office which will provide much needed space for the staff who do such a fantastic job providing specialist care for those living with terminal or life limiting ill-

MP reflects on first 100 days of Tory government

HARLOW MP Robert Halfon has hailed the Government's first 100 days in power since May's General Election by declaring that "promises have been met".

After increasing his majority, Mr Halfon said he was keen to repay the trust of voters by showing that progress had been made.

Mr Halfon, who was rewarded by Prime Minister David Cameron by being made deputy chairman of the Conservative Party and minister without portfolio, said he has been working hard to deliver on the five key promises he made during the election campaign.

"I campaigned hard for lower fuel bills, bringing jobs and apprentices back to Harlow, Harlow housing for Harlow people, protecting our NHS and fairer immigration laws," he said.

Achieve

"I'm glad that in the first 100 days I have been able to achieve this in Parliament for the people of Harlow and across the country."

Mr Halfon said an extra £8bn had been allocated to the NHS the summer budget and he praised the Government for freezing fuel duty, extending the Help to Buy housing scheme to 2020 and supporting the introduction of a national living wage.

On the subject of immigration, he said the Government was committed to reforming family visas and scrapping housing benefit for EU jobseekers.

He said proof of his commitment to Harlow could be seen in his numerous visits to community events, charity functions, schools, businesses and meetings with representatives of Harlow Council.

"I love Harlow, I champion Harlow and I work hard for Harlow," he added.

criminal trial. But on Tuesday, Essex area coroner Eleanor McGann announced that she had changed her decision.

A three-week jury inquest is now scheduled from November 9 at Chelmsford Coroners' Court.

Mr and Mrs Blunnie claim that only a full inquest could properly investigate their concerns that the authorities failed its legal obligation to protect Eystna from "a real and immediate risk to life", and that these concerns were not addressed at the trial.

Mrs McGann said that at the time of her earlier judgement she had concerns about decisions made in regards to an incident on April 9, 2012 when McLernon assaulted Miss Blunnie, which was reported to police.

The coroner said a letter from Essex Crown Prosecution Service to the judge in March 2013 apologised for its "regrettable" mistake in not prosecuting McLernon for the assault.

Violated

She said: "I accept [the family's submission] that there only needs to be an arguable case, or grounds for suspicion, that the state may have breached its obligation, or that that obligation may have been violated. I have decided that the letter does give grounds for suspicion that the state may have violated an obligation. So there is going to be an inquest."

The coroner made McLernon an "interested person" in the inquest but added: "Whether or not the governor of his prison will release him to come is, of course, another matter."

She said he would not give evidence at the inquest, however, and pointed out that a coroner's jury had no power to overturn a Crown Court jury's verdict.

Mr Gold added: "Clearly the family and the parents are obviously very pleased that the circumstances which resulted in Eystna's death, including involvement of the police and other state agencies, will be fully investigated by the Essex coroner."

Mr and Mrs Blunnie added their "deep thanks" to Mr Gold and his associate Jade Brown for their support over the past two years.

Charity staff surprised by £5,000 Asda gift

A CHARITY supporting homeless people in Harlow found itself on the receiving end of some welcome help when it received a donation of more than £5,000 from the town's branch of Asda.

Streets2Homes, which is based in Wych Elm, will use the money to help those in need as the supermarket chain celebrated its 50th birthday.

The charity has a wish list of items including washing machines, tumble driers and IT equipment.

Chief operations manager Kerrie Eastman said she was "amazed" when a Volkswagen Campervan decorated in celebratory cake livery pulled up outside its offices last week.

Inside the vehicle was Asda community life champion Rachel Forth who was there to present the cheque to Kerrie and fellow charity member Kieren Mitchell.

Streets2Homes had applied for a share of Asda's national £500,000 giveaway by telling the company exactly what it would be looking to spend the money on.

"I didn't know we had been successful until they turned up in the van," said Kerrie. "It was really exciting because we were getting our wish but the whole thing was a bit bizarre."

"Without this money we would never be able to afford the washing machines and driers which will make a real difference. It's amazing for us."

The charity enjoyed the freedom of choosing exactly what they wanted to spend the money on rather than it being channelled into a specific area.

Three people taken to hospital after two motorbikes collide

Two bikers and a pillion passenger are injured

Gemma Gardner

A MOTORBIKE crash in Harlow that left three people with serious injuries is being investigated by police.

Officers are appealing for witnesses after the collision on Edinburgh Way near to its junction with Howard Way in the national speed limit zone late on Sunday evening.

The East of England Ambulance Service NHS Trust (EEAST) were called at 11.18pm to the site after a report of a crash involving two motorcycles.

Three ambulance crews, a rapid response vehicle and a doctor from Suffolk Accident Rescue Service attended.

Two riders and a pillion passenger, all

ACCIDENT: The scene of the accident in Edinburgh Way from the Waltham Abbey area, were found to have serious injuries following the collision, and all were initially taken to Princess Alexandra Hospital in Harlow.

A man aged in his 30s, who had been riding a blue Honda 500, was later transferred to Addenbrooke's Hospital in Cambridge with leg, pelvis and other injuries. His condition remained serious as the Star went to press.

The other bike involved was a red Honda 125 ridden by a man in his 20s and a woman also in her 20s, who was a pillion passenger. Both were treated for leg injuries.

The road was closed following the accident and remained shut until around 5am Monday while initial police investigations took place. Enquiries are continuing. One rider was reported for a motoring offence.

Any witnesses or anyone with information about events leading to the collision should contact Pc Dan Corr at Chigwell road policing office on 101.

Road changes unnecessary

SIR I find myself travelling the length of England in my duties, driving on many roads in many counties. But it is when I return to Harlow that I find the worst roads.

Please can someone tell me why Essex County Council is failing to repair our roads. In their infinite wisdom they have made alterations to two roundabouts – one at Harlow Town station and the other at the Clock Tower roundabout – but neither of these have or indeed will make one iota of a change to traffic.

The one at the station has just become a car park for traffic trying to leave it on to one of the single lane roads. The one at the Clock Tower has a filter lane leading on to Second Avenue, again a single lane carriageway where cars will have filter in a very short distance.

Now they have decided to replace the traffic lights on Southern Way at Bush Fair with a roundabout. I believe there have been fatal accidents involving pedestrians at this point in the past.

With lights the traffic does at least come to a controlled halt from time to time, whereas with a roundabout cars will be competing with each other to get on to it.

The county council is, in my opinion, wasting our taxes on these unnecessary changes when they should be repairing the potholes which are a serious danger.

Town is at a crossroads

SIR The Save Harlow Town Centre campaign deserves both praise and support from all the parties involved.

Harlow is at a crossroads with the new Enterprise Zone and many new homes being built, with significantly more proposed. Our growing and increasingly prosperous town needs a vibrant and modern focus in its town centre with good shops, restaurants and other amenities.

The northern end of the centre is in particular need of work. Whereas the southern end has been redeveloped and has a buzz of people in the evening as well as during the day, the northern end seems to die after what few shops remain have closed.

Whatever happened to the redevelopment plans which became a victim of the recession? Why have they not been resurrected?

Michael Hardware
Great Brays, Harlow

SIR I totally agree that something needs to be done about our town centre.

We have one half of the town with restaurants and a selection of shops while the other half is a disgrace – closed shops, the old cinema and empty Little Walk.

We badly need to get this back half back to normal. The posh half, as we call it, is OK if you are able-bodied and can walk down there and back but a lot of pensioners are unable to do so, especially in the winter.

So please bring our town centre back to the days when we had a good selection of shops and it was not divided in two.

Mrs Webb
Church Langley, Harlow

Site is ECC's responsibility

SIR I am sure I am not the only

READER photo of the week

■ This week's photo of a bumble bee heavily laden with pollen on a hibiscus flower was snapped by Emily Tovell, of Spring Hilles, Harlow. "I took the picture in my auntie's garden in The Dashes," she writes. "I love it as you can see all the pollen stuck to it."

■ If you have a photo you would like featured, email a high resolution copy, along with a description and details of where and when it was taken, to star@hertsessexnews.co.uk. Please include your name and address and insert 'Photo of the Week' in the subject line.

person to be both amazed and disgusted to learn that Harlow Council has found £70,000 to pay towards a £628,000 refurbishment of the Fern Hill traveller site.

I am amazed that the council would consider giving away Harlow taxpayers' money to a project that is clearly the responsibility of Essex County Council, the authority that has already been responsible for plunging the town into darkness at night whilst at the same time giving Labour councillors an excuse to raise the council tax bill for everyone living here on the promise that our lights would be switched on again.

Furthermore, it is for a project designed to benefit the very limited number of people who created the conditions that now need rectifying, having been allowed to carry out activities within the site that would have resulted in prosecution for any resident or tenant in the town!

I am disgusted because anyone living a settled lifestyle who wants to dispose of bulky items in the town is required to pay a £10 fee for a collection of five items by the heavy squad and would suffer dire consequences if they were to follow the example at Fern Hill and just dump their unwanted rubbish at a convenient location adjacent to their dwellings.

For £70,000 the council could provide a free collection to 7,000 taxpayers in Harlow, not just a few selected families that choose to live an alternative lifestyle.

And it is worth remembering that Harlow taxpayers have just had to fork up an extra £70,000-£80,000 to clean up the mess left behind on our open spaces, verges and cycle tracks by the traveller community parking illegally in our town.

It is one thing taking care of our minority groups within the town, but quite another when they are getting a disproportionate amount of tax spent on them to support their lifestyle choices whilst services to the majority are being cut and cut again.

Chris Ford
Hull Grove, Harlow

SIR I was amused to note the criticisms by Tory councillors Andrew Johnson and Russell Perrin of their party colleagues at County Hall (Star, August 6).

When the Fern Hill travellers site was established in 1969-70 it was financed and constructed by Essex County Council as part of its duties under the 1968 Caravan Sites Act – and it still has responsibility to maintain it.

Surely Cllrs Johnson and Perrin should be telling their Tory mates at County Hall to carry out their responsibilities for the site properly . . . and also to tell them that we want our street lights back on.

Ron Bill

Thanks to all who helped

SIR It was my son who had the accident at the Potter Street Splash Park in Harlow on Friday, August 7 and I was hoping you could print a few lines in the Star from me and my family to thank the very kind man and lady who helped me that day.

The man sat with my son and wrapped him in a towel while I was frantically calling 999 and trying to contact family and the lady helped calm me down and offered words of reassurance.

Owen has broken his femur in three places and was in traction for a few days. He now has a full plaster cast making him very immobile but after four nights in hospital he is now home.

It is nice to know that there are some very kind people out there willing to help complete strangers. I will be thankful to them forever.

Housing estate is not a village

SIR It did make me smile when I read the letter from the resident of that large housing estate on the east of Harlow called Church Langley (Star, August 6). He says he likes his village atmosphere and referred to the place a couple of times as a village.

But is it really? No, it is a housing development much the same as the newer Newhall site. At least that was built around a once-working farm, unlike Church Langley which was carved out of good agricultural land to satisfy the demand for development land.

In time it will probably join up with Newhall and that will in years to come swallow Churchgate Street and join up with another development already planned for Gilden Way in much the same way that the many small hamlets and villages which were absorbed into Harlow New Town were all destroyed to make way for this large sprawling town in the beginning.

He also says he likes to keep his distance from the town, implying that it really is a separate place. You get your services from Harlow Council, you are linked in to the town by every means possible – sewerage, power, gas, water, politics, buses and healthcare. Is Tesco really the village shop? Do you have a village or parish council?

I was born and raised in one and I doubt many who live there even have an inkling of what real village life was or is like. So get over yourselves, you live in Harlow. A different part agreed, but Harlow none the less.

Name and address supplied

Cycle tracks free for all

SIR Cycling as a means of personal transport and as a personal exercise system has no equal, so I was pleased to read in the Star that Harlow Council, together with some local organisations and businesses, are organising a mass participation cycling event on August 30.

Cycling in this country has really taken off recently but mainly as a serious leisure activity to be undertaken on a carbon fibre missile whilst clad in Lycra rather than as a day to day means of getting about.

In this regard, Harlow is well behind the curve. So it is encouraging to read that Cllr Emma Toal recognises the environmental and health benefits of cycling. I only hope that she and other councillors back this event by taking part.

As for myself, I would love to take part but I am already committed to a cycling event in London on that day. I just hope that as many of your readers as possible take part.

The organisers state that places are limited. That may be so but the cycle tracks and roads are free for all to use – so just ride and see how good it is.

In brief

Councillors oppose plan to build on garages site

NORTH WEALD: Plans to build 12 'affordable' houses in Queens Road are being opposed by parish councillors.

East Thames Housing Group is seeking permission to build 10 three-bedroom and two two-bedroom houses on the site of 54 garages, 25 of which are currently standing empty.

But members of North Weald Bassett Parish Council's planning committee objected to the scheme on various grounds including parking issues, the density of the proposed development and access.

The final decision will be taken by Epping Forest District Council.

New look for post office

SAWBRIDGEWORTH: The post office located in McColl's convenience store, in Bell Street, will be closed for refurbishment next month.

The office will shut at 5.30pm on Thursday, September 3 and reopen at 1pm on Monday, September 14.

There will then be two main screened positions open Monday to Saturday from 9am-5.30pm and an open-plan serving point offering selected services on Monday to Saturday from 6-9am and 5.30-8pm and on Sunday from 7am-8pm.

Have your say on police

ESSEX: Police chiefs are asking the public to rate its service as part of a confidential survey, formulated in conjunction with academics at Anglia Ruskin University.

The questionnaire on the force's website asks residents to identify the things it does well as well as those areas where it needs to improve.

The survey runs until September 15.

Couple celebrate their diamond wedding anniversary

William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

IN 1955 Queen Elizabeth II had been on the throne for three years, Harlow New Town was still in its infancy and Little Richard released Tutti Frutti.

It was also the year Tom and Rita Withington, of Great Brays, Harlow, were married and today (Thursday) they are celebrating their diamond wedding anniversary.

A lot has changed over the past 60 years but the love uniting the couple is as strong as the day they tied the knot at St Mary's Church in Plaistow.

Tom, 82, and Rita, 80, first met when they were just 14 and 12 and living in London.

"I left school in December 1946 and I started work just before Christmas," said Tom, whose first job was as an office boy at a firm in Canning Town.

"Rita and I were introduced by some friends of ours at the time but I had to complete my National Service and it wasn't until another Christmas, this time 1952, that we became an item.

"We were out one night and Rita asked me to look after her cigarettes but she hurt her ankle at the party and went home, so I ended up smoking her cigarettes. I went round to her family's home to see how she was. I only had the fag pack to give her back but that was how it started."

The couple moved to Harlow in 1961 to start a family, moving into a house in Spencers Croft. Tom got a job locally cutting and moulding helmets for pilots and then worked as a forklift driver until his retirement.

Rita took a job with Littlewoods, but not before raising their four daughters – Sandy, now 56, Janet, 51 and twins Lynn and Tina, 43.

They now have 10 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Tom and Rita celebrated their anniversary on Saturday with a gathering for family and friends.

"We worked together through thick and thin and we have always worked hard to sort our problems out," said Rita. "And we are both very proud of our family."

Ambulance and fire services to expand 'station share' trial

A PILOT scheme to speed up ambulance response times to patients has been hailed a success.

Paramedics working for the East of England Ambulance Service Trust have been based at the fire station in Old Harlow since January.

Crews have an allocated parking area between 6am and 2am and are also able to use the station's toilet facilities and rest areas.

The trial scheme, which was also run in Frinton, was so successful that it is now being extended to a further five stations across Essex.

Mark Wilby, project manager for the Essex County Fire and Rescue Service, said it allowed the ambulance service to respond to emergency calls quicker by having more people based around the area.

Benefits

"Firefighters very often work alongside ambulance teams at the scene of road traffic collisions," he said.

"By providing ambulance colleagues with a bolt hole, there will be the positive practical benefits but it should also help to develop relationships on the ground and potentially lead to greater understanding.

"The service already shares facilities with partners and we are pleased to be able to build on our relationships and work more closely with other blue light colleagues in this way."

Sandra Chick, senior locality manager for EEAst Mid Essex, said: "This is a great opportunity not only to improve response times but also in terms of expanding partnership working across the county and making the best use of resources."

If the extended pilot is successful the two organisations will look to develop the arrangement further.

Feast of fun at family day out

Organisers amazed at success of fundraiser

William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

VISITORS had their fill of fun at a family day which included a burger eating competition, live snakes, a dance demonstration and a teddy bear auction. More than 2,000 people enjoyed a host of activities at Saturday's event which was held at The Link in Parsloe Road.

By the end of the day a total of £5,400 had been raised for St Clare Hospice.

Ben Johnson, a partner in the Harlow-based firm of estate agents Reyland Johnson which organised the event, said he was amazed at the public's response, adding: "It was a fantastic success."

He said: "For the Man v Food challenge one of the stalls provided the burgers to see how many could be eaten in 12 minutes. I think one guy ate eight, although he was a bit ill afterwards."

"Of course I think I could have eaten more but it would have been unfair for an organiser to take part."

Other attractions included a DJ, a live band, inflatable football, a tombola, live reptile stall and supercars.

Mr Johnson added: "The costs of running St Clare Hospice are astronomical and we just hope this makes a difference. They are a great charity."

He added that as organisers of the fun day he hoped it would help to counter the negative stereotype of estate agents.

Volunteers helping to protect key sites

Scheme aims to stop vandalism of historic buildings

William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

SITES of historical and architectural importance in Harlow will be better protected from vandalism under a new scheme say organisers.

Volunteer members say the newly-created Heritage Watch will help prevent more than 200 properties in the area recognised by Historic England, from being damaged.

The scheme will be launched at a special event on Saturday, September 19. It will be managed by the Harlow Neighbourhood Watch which is currently looking for people to join.

The type of property recognised varies from the old and the new with private homes, churches and old commercial buildings such as Barclays Bank, and the former George Hotel in Old Harlow.

Paul Wadley, secretary of Harlow Neighbourhood Watch, encouraged all to attend the free launch event to learn more about the scheme.

"Heritage Watch aims to protect historical sites and artefacts around Essex from crime," he said.

"People to think of historical sites being castles and stately homes but Harlow has some landmark 1950s architecture which is protected.

"It is important to protect these sites and also older buildings – especially churches as thieves can often target them for building materials and flagstones.

"These buildings can be the centre of a community."

Mr Wadley said a number of guest speakers including Essex Police and Essex Heritage Trust have been invited to provide introductions at the launch.

A spokesman from Essex Police said: "Building on the success of other watch schemes in Essex, Heritage Watch is a partnership between agencies who share a duty to protect our heritage and members of the public who want to support the history of their community.

"Heritage crime is the term given to any offence which harms the value of heritage assets and their surroundings. Sadly, it can lead to the loss of a piece of historic forever."

The event will be held in the Monks Barn at the Harlow Study Centre at 2pm. For more information visit www.essex.police.uk/my\_neighbourhood.

Ambulance trust picks new chief executive

A FORMER paramedic and a community first responder will take up his new role as chief executive of the East of England Ambulance Service Trust later this month.

Robert Morton succeeds Anthony Marsh, who has held the post on an interim basis since January last year.

Mr Morton has worked in the ambulance service for nearly 25 years, predominantly with the National Ambulance Service in Ireland where he eventually became chief executive for three years. He then went on to be chief executive of the South Australian Ambulance Service.

He said: "I am thrilled to be the new chief executive and very much look forward to working with my new EAST colleagues.

"The service has been through some very difficult and challenging times over the last few years but I am confident we can build on the good work that Anthony Marsh has put in place to further improve our services.

"Having worked in the ambulance service for many, many years I understand the challenges and issues and how we can resolve them together. Whilst it is not going to be easy, I know first-hand the commitment and dedication of those working in the ambulance service and that together we can make a real difference for patients."

Mr Morton will take up the chief executive post on Monday.

Exam students celebrate the results of hard work

Town's sixth formers prove they are pass masters at A-level

William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

THERE were tears of joy and disappointment as the nail-biting wait for exam results finally came to an end for Harlow's A-level students on Thursday.

Those at Harlow College achieved a 99.6 per cent pass rate, with 85 per cent achieving an A-C grade and seven per cent achieving an A*.

Among the top performers were James Rowe, 18, who gained an A*, two As and a B and Manisha Koolman, 18, who achieved three As and a B.

James, who plans to study mathematics at the University of Surrey, said: "I had hoped for a second A* which would have guaranteed a scholarship at Surrey but I am pleased with what I achieved. It was a nervous wait."

Nathan Walton, 18, who was anxiously waiting for a response from one university hours after the grades were announced, said: "I'm hoping for London Metropolitan, but I have got to wait to find out."

Friends Nadeem Qureshi and Mark Umerah, both 18, were happy with their results which secured them places at their chosen universities.

Head of sixth form Tracy Greenall, said: "They have all done wonderfully,

Words of praise and congratulations for county's top performers

A-LEVEL students across the county have been praised after figures for Essex showed improvements across all key measures.

More than 4,000 students were entered into the exams and almost 99 per cent gained passes at grades A* - E. Of these, 26.5 per cent were awarded A*-A grades, a figure above the national average.

In addition, around 80 per cent of passes in vocational Level 3 subjects were distinctions or better.

Cllr Ray Gooding, Essex County Council's cabinet member for education and lifelong learning, said: "I am delighted Essex students have done so well.

"As the local education authority we are committed to providing the county's schools with the support needed to give pupils the best possible education and are expecting to see another big rise in the percentage rated as good or outstanding when the latest Ofsted data becomes available."

and many students will be going onto great universities.

"Some have done so well that they have entered adjustment as they got higher grades than expected.

"It is lovely to see that so much hard work has paid off."

Emotions flowed at St Mark's West Essex Catholic School which achieved a 97 per cent pass mark, with 70 per cent of students securing an A-C grade.

With three A*s and two As, 19-year-old Lucy Wang was understandably delighted her hard work had paid off.

"I'm pleased with my results as it means I will be able to study at the London School of Economics," she said. "I was so nervous about the results and this morning I was even shaking."

Her friend Egle Packausleite, 18, will now study architecture at Greenwich University after receiving three Bs. She said: "I am so excited to have got these grades and be going to university. There was so much pressure on the results, it felt like my life depended on it. I am very relieved."

Fellow student Channele Hayles, 18, said of her A, two Bs and C: "I am ecstatic. I was not expecting to get such good grades.

"I was checking UCAS like crazy this morning and there were lots of tears and tantrums along the way, but I am very happy to have got into Queen Mary University in London."

Overall the 70 per cent attainment of A-C grades were a big improvement on the 60 per cent achieved by the Tripton Road school last year.

Headteacher Elaine Heaphy said: "We are delighted for the students; they should be proud of their achievements and we wish them all the best for future endeavours. I would like to thank students, staff and parents for an exemplary team effort."

Students at Leventhorpe School in Sawbridgeworth achieved a 51 per cent pass rate at grades of A* to B.

Headteacher John Locke said he was delighted that students had scored higher grades and more university entry points than the national average.

"We celebrate the achievement of all of our students but I think it is testament to the hard work and effort of our students and staff that for yet another year the school's top performers have achieved such superb results."

VJ DAY: Wreaths laid at memorial tree in Town Park

Remembering the sacrifice of Far East POWs

William Mata

william.mata@hertssexnews.co.uk

A SERVICE to mark the 70th anniversary of the day Japan surrendered and brought to an end the Second World War was held in Harlow on Saturday.

Councillors joined war veterans and representatives of various service organisations including the Royal British Legion at the commemoration in Harlow Town Park.

During the moving service Harlow Council chairman Tony Hall and vice-chairman Edna Stevens laid wreaths at the foot of a memorial walnut tree which was planted in 1984 by the West Essex and South Herts Far East Prisoners of War Association.

It was a place veterans would gather every VJ Day with family to remember and reflect on their time as POWs.

Sadly there are now no members of the branch left alive and so, for the first time, the service was arranged by Harlow Council.

Former branch secretary Shirley Simpkins read a poem in memory of her father David, who was a prisoner of war.

"My dad weighed just over five stone and they were all truly mentally stressed over what had happened to them and what they had seen," she said.

"It was brutality beyond what a human being could stand. Most of the lads that went out to the Far East had never been out of the country before and as soon as they arrived they were ordered to lay down their arms and surrender.

"The West Essex and South Herts FEPOWs were a fantastic group of men, their wives and families. They were as strong a group of sincere and honest people I've yet to come across and it was my absolute pleasure to help them in any way that I managed to."

Cllr Hall said: "On the 70th anniversary of VJ Day it is important we raise awareness of the memorials we have in Harlow and the place in the Town Park where veterans would gather to remember their time as FEPOWs.

"We will never forget the sacrifice the veterans made for their country."

Motorbike buffs rev up for crowds at airfield festival

CROWDS of motorcycle enthusiasts were treated to a bike spectacular at North Weald Airfield.

Bikefest was such a popular event that it was filmed for ITV's The Motorcycle Show.

The day gave bike buffs the chance to bring their trusted wheels along and compete against the clock on the track.

Tony Huck, who organises the event for London-based Maitland Racing, said he was already looking forward to bringing the show back to the airfield next year.

"I've been running events at North Weald since 1992 and they always go well," said the 65-year-old. "This year was a successful and busy event, the attendance was pretty good and we had in excess of 150 competitors."

"This event is just for bikes and caters for any sort of bike."

There were lots of old famous bikes as well as the newest superbikes."

Spectators had the chance to enjoy a range of stalls and displays but the main event was the racing.

"We had a sprint for classic bikes made in the years up to 1990," said Tony. "There was a class structure and each class had a winner."

"As well as that there was a test and tune event where anyone can turn up with any bike and race against the clock throughout the day."

"We had people racing on classic old scooters and then people competing on the newest super bikes."

Go-ahead for plans to build 343 homes

£67m development will transform three estates

Gemma Gardner

gemma.gardner@hertsexnews.co.uk

PROPOSALS to transform three 1960s-built housing estates in Harlow have been given the green light by council planners.

More than 340 new homes will be built at The Briars, Copshall Close and Aylets Field in the Staple Tye area of town.

The £67m scheme, which is being funded by Home Group and Countryside, will feature a mix of detached, semi-detached and terraced houses as well as apartments.

More than half will be managed by Home Group, providing affordable homes for rent and shared ownership properties. They will replace the outdated bungalows which do not meet current Decent Homes Standards.

Landscaping

Also included in the scheme is a new community centre, landscaping, roads and parking as well as training opportunities for local people.

A planning application was submitted in May after Harlow Council signed an agreement with the developers. Permission was granted last Wednesday by the council's development management committee.

Residents living on the estates were involved in producing a design and development brief. They also met with the developers and attended a series of consultation events over the past two years.

VISION: An artist's impression of how The Briars will look

Tenants living in homes on the three estates have been given the choice of moving to temporary accommodation and then returning once the project is complete or being permanently rehoused in council or housing association property elsewhere in the town.

The scheme will be developed in three phases, with the process of moving residents in the first phase already under way.

Councillor Tony Durcan, portfolio holder for regeneration and enterprise, said: "Working with Home Group and Countryside we can really transform these estates and create a mix of brand new homes for local people."

"Once completed, this redevelopment will help us deliver our commitments to provide more and better housing and to regenerate Harlow."

Richard Cherry, chief executive of partnerships at Countryside, said: "We are pleased to have been given the go ahead for these plans which will significantly improve the quality of housing available to local people."

Environment

"Our focus is on creating a safe and pleasant environment that people will be proud to call home, with green open spaces and the highest standards of design and finish. We are now working hard to progress matters and start on site as soon as possible."

Garth Crawford, head of development at Home Group, added: "This project will transform the area and enable residents to move from outdated 1960s homes into modern, well-designed and energy efficient properties."

Residents will receive regular updates on the progress of the scheme.

Maddie's mountain challenge in Japan

Student to climb volcano in support of pal with Lyme Disease

William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A UNIVERSITY student is planning to climb the highest mountain in Japan to show support for a friend who is suffering from a life-altering disease.

Maddie Dowd, 20, is raising money for the charity Lyme Disease Action after one of her friends, Alice Mei Iszatt, contracted the condition which is transmitted to humans by the bite of an infected tick.

Symptoms include extreme tiredness, muscle pain and weakness, joint pain, upset digestive system, headaches and disturbances of the central nervous system.

Maddie and Alice have known each other since the age of four and were both pupils at Saint Nicholas School in Old Harlow. But over the past four years Alice's health has deteriorated after the disease went undiagnosed for a period of time.

When it was eventually detected it had already reached a serious level and as a result Alice now suffers from severe breathing problems as well as depression and anxiety.

Maddie, who lives in Eastwick and studies interior and space design at the University of Arts in London, will be travelling to Japan next month as part of a project for her course.

While there she will climb 3,770-metre high Mount Fuji, an active volcano, over two days and hopes to raise £750 for LDA. She has been training for four months for the challenge and has even learned a little Japanese in preparation.

CHARITY CLIMB: 20-year-old student Maddie Dowd is planning to climb Mount Fuji

"I'm petrified as although I'll be doing it as part of a group I will be there on my own," she said. "The first day I will go up most of the volcano to reach a safe point where I will stay the night to let my body get use to the altitude."

"The next day I will get to the top and then come down."

She added: "I am doing this for Alice. Her positivity is something we could all learn from."

"She refuses to speak negatively of her current condition and only shares her smiles and good days on social media and with friends."

"She is an inspiration. Her aim is to share with people her condition to prevent others getting to the state she is now in. I am doing this to raise awareness and money for the cause; the blisters will be bliss in comparison."

RANGERS CLUB

Shower of shooting stars

AN amazing light show thrilled stargazers in parts of the UK last week as they scanned the night skies to catch sight of hundreds of shooting stars.

It is the first time since 2007 the Perseid meteor shower, which happens every year, coincided with a new moon which created the ideal conditions of a dark sky for those wanting to see the spectacular display.

Each August the Earth passes through a cloud of debris left by comet Swift-Tuttle back in 1992. It is these tiny pieces of ice and dust that hit the Earth's atmosphere at over 130,000mph, producing streaks of light as they burn up.

Robin Scagell, vice president of the Society for Popular Astronomy, said: "The thing about shooting stars is they're a wonderful free spectacle we can all enjoy. They glow in the sky for a few seconds or sometimes for several minutes."

"It's best to watch them from the countryside but even in town these meteors are bright enough for a few to be visible."

Ashley set a £1k goal to take part on volunteer trip

Quiz night will raise funds for Ghana mission

William Mata

william.mata@hertssexnews.co.uk

TIME is running out for a Harlow man who needs to raise £1,000 to take part on what he hopes will be a life-changing trip to Ghana.

Ashley Jackson, 24, of Hornbeams, must hit his target by September 7 if he is to take part in the trip with global volunteering charity Latitude.

During his three-month stay in the African country he will put the experience he has gained through volunteering for Harlow Youth Council and Occasio House to teach lessons in life skills to young Ghanaians.

In addition he will play the supportive role as a team leader for a group of other young volunteers on the trip, who are all aged 17-25.

"It's something I've always wanted to do," said the former Burnt Mill School student. "I saw this opportunity come up on Facebook and I went for it as I really think this is a chance for me to grow as a person."

"After the trip I want to be coming back to make a difference

in Harlow by using the skills that I will learn through going to Ghana.

"It has been a long time coming but it is going to be worth it."

The group of volunteers are due to set to jet off on September 21, but while Ashley has a possibility of extending the trip beyond the December end-date if he performs well, he is still some way short of raising the money he needs to go.

With the deadline fast approaching, his diary is packed with fundraising events, starting with a quiz night at Colt Hatch Social Club on Saturday.

"We're hoping to get 30-40 people of the quiz, but more would be great," he said. "My nan will be calling the questions as she is the best quizmaster that I know."

He also plans to hold a bingo night and raffle in the coming weeks.

"I've already been away for training with some of the other team leaders and I'm really excited to be going," he said. "I hope to come back a different person."

Donations made to Ashley's online JustGiving page currently stand at £105, meaning that every penny counts in his mission to travel to Africa.

Have your say on town centre's future

A SURVEY for residents to express their views about Harlow town centre has generated scores of responses in its first week.

The poll launched by campaign group Save Harlow Town Centre will be available online for the next few weeks.

The campaign was set up by Harlow's Conservative councillors, who are calling for the state of the town centre to be made a priority and action taken before it is too late.

Labour-run Harlow Council, which has already pledged to pump £1m into the heart of the town, has announced its support for the campaign.

This week Conservative group leader Andrew Johnson said: "I want to hear from the people of Harlow. I trust their judgement and want their views.

"There are 83,000 people in this town and, should they wish, they should all have their say."

To take part in the survey visit www.harlowstar.co.uk.

HAVING opened just a few weeks ago, Re-New Carpets and Flooring Ltd is one of Harlow's newest businesses.

Offering tools and accessories for carpet and flooring fitters across the Essex/Hertfordshire region, this family business is run by Jon Ahern and John Reddy along with John's son, Paul.

Jon Ahern has more than 30 years of experience in the carpet and flooring industry and the trio realised there was a gap in the market locally which led to a decision to open their shop at the Harlow Business Centre in Lovet Road.

"My brother-in-law has been in the trade for 30 years, working in the domestic and commercial sectors, and we feel that we are perfectly suited to help serve our customers' needs and requirements when it comes to carpet and flooring," said Paul.

"We also provide a professional and friendly service and are only too happy to help."

As well as tools and accessories for the carpet and flooring trade, Re-New Carpets and Flooring Ltd has a carpet and flooring showroom with carefully selected quality products and offers a fitting service.

Professional carpet cleaning is another service available from Re-New and you'll find that all of the flooring services are very competitively priced.

Re-New Carpets and Flooring Ltd is open Monday to Friday from 7.30am until 5.30pm and on Saturdays from 7.30am to 12.30pm. Home visits are also available.

Town with lots to offer

BEING part of London's commuter belt, Harlow has long been a popular place to live with its excellent transport links to the capital.

Built in the years after the Second World War to relieve overcrowding in north-east London, the masterplan for the New Town was drawn up by Sir Frederick Gibberd.

The development incorporated the market town of Harlow, Old Harlow and the villages of Great Parndon, Latton, Tye Green, Potter Street, Churchgate Street, Little Parndon and Netteswell.

The town is divided into neighbourhoods, each self-supporting with their own shopping hatches, community facilities and pubs.

Harlow has one of the most extensive cycle track networks in the country, connecting all areas of the town to the town centre and industrial areas.

The town centre and many of the neighbourhood shopping facilities have undergone major redevelopment over the years, along with many of the town's original buildings.

The former town hall, once a landmark in the town, has been demolished and replaced by a new Civic Centre which dominates the Water Gardens shopping area.

Harlow has continued to expand over the years and now incorporates the Church Langley development, which was completed in 2005, and the award-winning Newhall community.

Harlow has six secondary schools, more than 30 primary schools, a college, a campus of Anglia Ruskin University and, most recently, the Sir Charles Kao University Technical College.

Culturally, the town is home to a large collection of public sculptures ranging from Auguste Rodin to Henry Moore. The collection earned it the official title of sculpture town.

It was one of Sir Frederick Gibberd's dreams to make sculptures more accessible to the general public and, as a result, many interesting works are situated in shopping centres, parks and housing estates around the town.

History lovers can keep themselves entertained at Harlow Museum, which hosts a range of exhibitions throughout the year, while Harlow Leisurezone offers all the facilities required by residents wanting to enjoy a healthy lifestyle.

Other attractions include the Town Park and Pets' Corner, The Lock climbing wall and The Playhouse and Victoria Hall theatres.

Come and have a taste of the Mediterranean, with Greek and Cypriot cuisine such as Kleftiko, Moussaka, Calamari, Mezedes, Souvla, Skewers of Meat. And don't forget your Harlow Theatre Company presents Punk Rock, an edgy and unpredictable play written by Simon Stephens. Set in the library of a fee-paying grammar school, it tells the story of seven sixth formers who are revising for their mock 'A' levels. As they face the end of their school lives, a gathering tension builds before the exams during which insecurities, rivalries, desires and envy escalate. HTP's production is directed by Jane Miles.

Stage dream comes true

ACTRESS Abigail Carter-Simpson is reaping the rewards of following her dream having graduated from Harlow's Playhouse to the West End stage.

The 23-year-old from Sawbridgeworth is now starring in children's play Aliens Love Underpants at London's Dominion Theatre and is loving every minute.

"It has been amazing," she said of the Aliens performances,

"I have done shows in and around London before, but this is easily the biggest yet - we have eight sold out shows a week, so thousands of screaming kids!"

Having performed in many Playhouse productions, including the title role in Peter Pan, it was in Harlow that Abigail learnt her craft by taking classes, and was a member of the Phoenix Theatre Company.

"My mum used to take me to classes after school and I put all my time and efforts into drama - it was all I ever wanted to do," she said.

"I remember my grandparents would take me to the West End shows and I started dancing aged seven. I always knew I wanted to do it, but it took me a while to get a plan in place."

Now Abigail has returned to the West End, but on her own terms as part of the Aliens tour which had been all over the country before coming to the capital.

After the run at the Dominion ends on Saturday, September 5, the show will then move onto other UK theatres.

The successful show was adapted from the popular 2007 children's book by Claire Freedman. As the title suggests, the plot sees aliens beamed down from space with the bizarre desire to steal pants.

Abigail says: "I play three different roles - an eight-year-old girl called Veronica, a mad pants shop owner and a red alien.

"The show is only an hour long. It's very silly and contains lots of songs. I have my own song as the pants shop owner where I sing about the different types of underwear on sale.

"There are six cast members and the aliens are all puppets. It's a very high energy show and the children love it when the aliens come on stage - they go wild."

Aimed at children three to ten years old, Aliens will be the first experience of theatre for many in the audience.

Abigail is now becoming something of a specialist within the genre and says she finds the work really rewarding.

While she isn't entirely sure of what's next, Abigail has ambitions to appear in more children's theatre and maybe become a TV presenter. She states that playing Nancy in Oliver would be her ultimate ambition.

"I've worked really hard to get where I am," says Abigail, who completed a musical theatre degree in London.

"I have never lost sight of my vision, even when I've had to work on a few boring jobs to pay the bills.

"Everyone has their own way of making it [as an actress] but I would just advise anyone to stick with it really."

Punk group ready to rock Harlow

PUNK'S latest all-female sensation The Sex Pissed Dolls continue to rock venues up and down the country.

Lead singer Nancy Doll has never set foot in Essex, let alone Harlow, but that will all change when the group kick up a frenzy at The Square on Friday, August 21.

The Dolls formed after seeing a gap in the market for a new punk band but have been blown away with their instant success.

"I have been singing for 17 years in various bands," said Nancy. "Last year me and my boyfriend Paul (the band's manager) went to Punk Rebellion Festival and we were unimpressed. We love punk music but it was all just such rubbish we were hearing.

"We thought we should put a punk band together and that's how the idea came along - and we both liked the thought of having an all-female band of musicians playing punk songs.

"That's when we started advertising."

Nancy is Manchester through and through, and was unable to find the kind of musician she was looking for on her initial search.

"It's very hard to find female musicians in the north west; some who auditioned were okay players but didn't look the part and vice-versa," said Nancy, who was forced to expand her search to London.

The line-up now consists of Anna Key on drums, Jilly Idol on bass, Kitty Vacant on rhythm guitar and lead guitarist Connie Rotter.

SENSATION: The Sex Pissed Dolls

Nancy said the band came up with their stage names to protect their identities.

"We have had people come into our personal pages and some weirdos have been contacting us. We've tried to keep band things apart from our personal lives to ensure a level of separation."

In just 12 months the Dolls have grown from pubs to venues to concert halls after an initial run of 12 gigs turned into a mammoth tour of 60 venues.

"It just went crazy from the first clip," said Nancy of their first gig which was filmed and put online,

"We only expected to be doing pubs, but we've played various 02 Academy venues which is not bad for a punk covers band.

"At the beginning we were playing some songs that not all the girls knew that well, as we're not all from punk backgrounds. There were some very average shows to begin with but we've grown into a really fantastic live band; we're great - even if I do say so myself."

With a Facebook following of 30,000, photographers are queuing up to take their pictures and a swarm of new fans join the Dolls at each gig.

When they have some time off from touring in the autumn they are hoping to get some of their own songs written with a view to a possible album, Nancy explained.

However, making it as an all-girl band in a male dominated genre has been a real challenge.

"There are no all-female punk bands, and that's kind of why we did it, because it has never been done.

"As a woman I have got so much more to prove and people have been very critical - we have been called all kinds of things. There has been a lot of hate, and it has been quite annoying at times.

"However, some cynical people have been won over. There was a guy who came to heckle us who ended up really enjoying a performance and bought a t-shirt.

"People have also said that we shouldn't be playing punk as we were born after the whole movement, which is incorrect and also ridiculous. Just because I was born after Mozart died it doesn't mean I can't appreciate his music."

A kind of magic at the Playhouse

SUPREME QUEEN: See this fantastic tribute to Freddie Mercury and co at the Harlow Playhouse

Picture: Andrew Baker

Having performed as Freddie Mercury for more than 20 years, Scott Maley is finally bringing his Queen tribute band to Harlow.

Reigning majestically in a crowded world of covers bands, Supreme Queen offer the authentic live tribute to one of Britain's most famous acts. They will perform at The Playhouse on Friday, September 18.

"It is a very authentic show," said 46-year-old Scott, who has been in various Queen incarnations over the years,

"We all work hard to deliver a dazzling performance that do the songs justice. It is a complete show, not just one or two numbers, and Queen were a theatre band – so we try and reflect that."

Having grown up with classic albums such as A Night at the Opera and A Day at the Races, Scott has always been a huge fan.

He began performing as Freddie in 1995 – just four years after the late singer died from Aids, as his covers band were playing more and more Queen songs during their sets.

After such a long time playing the iconic singer on-stage, Scott has found that the character become part of his identity.

"I have done this now for 20 years, and it's part of me now that I've been doing it so long," he said.

"Freddie would say he was not the band leader, and while someone has to make decisions at the end of the day, we all know each other and respect what we have to do."

Being in a covers band does have its challenges – not least how to make a set list comprised of songs from the 1970s and 80s seem fresh and interesting.

"We don't mess much with the structure of the set. There's two 50 minute parts to it and we'll include songs that everyone will know.

"But we do also like to play some lesser known Queen songs and some that the band never performed live. If we did the same songs all the time it would get very boring for us."

So while classic hits Bohemian Rhapsody, Another One Bites the Dust and Crazy Little Thing Called Love should all feature, look out for some surprises.

"I always enjoy doing new songs, and we've got to find a balance," said Scott.

"For that reason I wouldn't really say I had a favourite Queen song over all, but I always enjoy the one we've worked into the set, or a song we're playing for the first time."

■ Tickets are from £18 and are on sale now from www.playhouseharlow.com or by calling the box office (01279) 431945.

Showcase of Harlow's diverse artistic talent

A new exhibition is showcasing diverse works from some of Harlow's most talented artists through a mixture of styles and media.

Observation and Imagination presents the paintings and drawings of artists under the tuition of Parndon Mill tutor

Roger Jeffs.

The works will be on show in the gallery until Sunday, September 20.

Mr Jeffs said: "There is no dominant or house style here, what you see is a group of talented artists developing technical and creative skills and working in a variety of ways to find their voice and evolve a personal response to the visual world.

"The ever-present themes are still life, landscape and the human figure. Parndon Mill is a refuge and an inspiration with the picturesque surroundings often being used as a subject matter for painting and drawing."

The gallery is open to the public from Tuesday – Friday from 10am-5pm and on Sundays and bank holidays from 2-4pm.

For more information, visit the gallery's website at www.parndonmill.co.uk.

Buoyed by the success of superior teen weepie The Fault In Our Stars, based on the book by John Green, scriptwriters Scott Neustadter and Michael H. Weber attempt to recreate the magic with this faithful adaptation of Green's bittersweet third novel.

Paper Towns deals with similar themes of alienation and sexual awakening from the perspective of peer pressured teenagers, whose existence hinges on finding a date for the end of year prom.

Director Jake Schreier sensitively and earnestly navigates these turbulent waters, eliciting solid performances from a young cast including leading man Nat Wolff, who played blind best friend Isaac in The Fault In Our Stars.

In the absence of a dramatic hook like terminal illness, Schreier's film sometimes lacks momentum and is missing a big emotional crescendo.

However, there's a refreshing refusal to succumb to sentimentality when the going gets tough and the script doesn't polish the characters' rough edges in order to tie up loose plot strands in a neat bow.

Every childhood is tainted with confusion and disappointment, and this coming-of-age saga is no different.

The film's unassuming hero is Florida high school student Quentin Jacobsen (Wolff), who has been madly in love with neighbour Margo Roth Spiegelman (Cara Delevingne) since she moved into the house across the street.

He has never mustered the courage to declare his true feelings, to the chagrin of best friends Ben (Austin Abrams) and Radar (Justice Smith), who are also poorly equipped to communicate effectively with the opposite sex.

Ben is a hormone-addled mess around blonde classmate Lacey (Halston Sage), while Radar has a girlfriend called Angela (Jaz Sinclair), who he fears will dump him for someone better.

Out of the blue, Margo knocks on Quentin's bedroom window and asks him to help her wreak revenge on her cheating jock boyfriend (Griffin Freeman).

The covert night-time mission is a success but the next morning, Margo does not turn up for class. She vanishes without trace and her parents assume she has run away again.

Quentin knows that Margo leaves secret markers when she goes walkabout, so he follows a treasure hunt of cryptic clues to track her down.

Paper Towns refers to fictional locations, which cartographers intentionally add to maps to prevent their hard work being plagiarised.

Many of the underlying themes of Schreier's film feel second-hand – paper angst if you will – but the script treats characters and their predicaments with cool, genuine affection.

Delevingne is a puckish, cynical foil to Wolff's naivete, and Abrams and Smith banter effectively as the comic relief.

Young hearts run free throughout to a soundtrack of indie pop and rock including Vampire Weekend and Twin Shadow.

On this count, these teenagers are too hip to be square.

TV HIGHLIGHTS

Mike's TV Film of the Week

THRILLER: BEFORE THE DEVIL KNOWS YOU'RE DEAD Channel 4, Friday, August 21, 1.05am (Saturday)

Director Sidney Lumet's long career in movies began extremely well in 1957 with 12 Angry Men and ended 50(!) years later in equally impressive style with Before The Devil Knows You're Dead, surely the best film ever made in the US by someone in their ninth decade (he was 83).

But boy, is it bleak. I've categorised it as a thriller, but really it's a melodrama with a crime at its centre. Suspense and surprise are hardly the point – in fact most of the 'revelations' occur in the first 15 minutes.

After a sex scene introduces us to married couple Andy (Philip Seymour Hoffman) and Gina (Marisa Tomei), the next thing we see is the crime – an attempted robbery of a jewellery store in which the robber and the elderly woman in the shop shoot each other, the robber landing dead in the street. His accomplice, distraught, drives away. In the next scene, we learn that the accomplice, Hank (Ethan Hawke), is Andy's younger brother; in the next that the shot woman is their mother; and then that Hank and Gina are having an affair.

The story is told using flashbacks – a deadly device in all but the most able hands – to follow different characters' paths to the same points. So when Andy suggests a way out of his and Hank's money troubles, we already know what he has in mind. Aware of the sterling quality of the script, by Kelly Masterson, Lumet keeps his distance, allowing the dreadfulness of the situation and the anguish of the protagonists to speak for themselves, but without gloating as the Coen Brothers might. The performances, and I haven't yet mentioned Albert Finney as the father, are terrific – multi-layered and raw.

V FESTIVAL 2015

Russell returns

As he prepares to perform at this year's V Festival, Russell Kane tells Darryl Webber about his new start, his fresh material and why he loves playing to an Essex crowd

It's not often you can say that things have been quiet with Russell Kane, but the Essex comedian has been conspicuous by his absence this year.

But he's back with a bang this weekend with a headline turn at the Glee Club Comedy Tent at the V Festival and it marks a new chapter in the career of the award-winning comedian.

This summer is the first time he's not played the Edinburgh Fringe in a decade and he's not regretting not going.

"I'd like to say I'm missing it, but I'm not," he says. "It's brilliant. You have to do a long run there, there's a lot of peer pressure, there's press and TV all the time and you've also got to be nailing it for 60 minutes every single night."

I spoke to Russell the Monday after he won the Edinburgh Comedy Award in 2010 (after being shortlisted three times previously) and he was driving hundreds of miles from the Scottish capital to play the Reading Festival. This summer, things aren't so manic, but he's readying for preview shows of new material in the autumn as a prelude to a major tour in 2016.

But first things first, there's the small matter of entertaining a few thousand people in a big tent at V Festival this weekend.

"I've not done the V Festival before, but my festival experiences have all been different. At T In The Park you're playing to people who are screaming at you and throwing beer around while at Latitude they're all sitting round with their carrots and dips. I've no idea how it will play out at V. It's quite nerve-wracking."

How is playing festivals different to playing his own shows?

"It's a slightly bigger performance," he says. "It's more of an arena style show, you're more declarative and you have to wait for things to sink in when you're in a bigger room."

V Festival will be Russell's first foray into live shows for a while – hence the nerves – but he knows he's got plenty of material up his sleeve.

"Last year was the first time I hadn't toured for ages but I'll be back doing it again in January. I've got five shows worth of back catalogue plus I'll improvise as well."

One of the reasons things have been quiet for Russell recently is that he's changed management which has prompted a bit of a rethink about what he does and the way he goes about it. He's still a whirling dervish of ideas and energy but he felt it was time to move on in certain areas.

"It was time to fold up the skinny jeans and put on a suit," he says. "It was time to try something new."

The first fruits of the new Russell Kane will be evident in his shows in September and October when he'll be trying out new material.

"It's about getting older and growing up a bit, taking responsibility. It's also about how you never feel your age, no matter how old you are. I'm 39 but I feel like I'm 25."

The show is still very much a work in progress but Russell is looking forward to trying it out and then touring it. He says what starts off as 65-70 minutes in previews typically ends up as 100 minutes of show by the end of the tour. He admits touring is what he enjoys most.

"I love life on the road. Some people hate it but it suits me. I have to work hard on not just enjoying my own company. I like having the time to read books, watch box sets, I enjoy meeting people, having curries, everything about it."

The comedian is especially looking forward to playing a few dates in his home county of Essex. He may not live in Southend anymore but he says he can see the 'Welcome To Essex' sign from the bedroom of his house in Woodford Green. He's got shows in Chelmsford, Colchester, Hornchurch and Westcliff lined up and can't wait to perform to Essex crowds again who he says are different to any others.

"It's easy peasy, they're on your side straight away. It's like sitting round the dinner table with your family. Everyone is up for a laugh. Home gigs are always good."

"I think Essex is unlike the rest of the south east because it's got that 'ness' thing about it, its 'Essexness'. It's like a prejudice people have against it to do with class and sexual politics. That's fantastic for a comedian because it gives you something to work with straight away."

■ Russell Kane will be recording his brand new DVD (released by Universal Pictures UK this November) at the Vaudeville Theatre in London's West End on Sunday, September 20. Russell is headlining the Glee Club Comedy Tent at this weekend's V Festival at Hylands Park, Chelmsford and Weston Park, Staffordshire. Visit www.vfestival.com

Coming home to V Festival

As V Festival celebrates its 20th edition, Stereophonics will be returning for their eighth appearance. Bassist Rich Jones tells Richard Brown why they love playing V

THEY say that home is where the heart is, and when Stereophonics return to V Festival for the eighth time in their 20-year career this weekend, they will do so with the same energy and enthusiasm that has become their trademark.

With their ninth studio album, Keep The Village Alive, just weeks away and the first two singles from the new record causing a stir on airwaves around the country, the Welsh rockers have every reason to be optimistic as they prepare for their headline set on the festival's MTV Stage.

Recapping on the band's 18-year-long relationship with V, bassist Rich Jones, who has been with the band since day one, said: "I think for us, our memories of V Festival go back to the first time we played there in 1997.

"We opened up one of the stages and Richard Branson introduced us because we were a new signing on his label.

"It was one of our first ever festival moments and it stuck in our memories. V is a great festival to be at and every time we have played there since it began, we've had a lot of fun.

"We have performed there so many times that we have built a relationship with it and we have a real fondness for it going back every time.

"We turn up to the festival site at Chelmsford and feel that we know where we are again. It's like putting on your favourite jacket; you feel comfortable and you get all the previous emotions coming back.

"The Chelmsford site is fabulous. We have been there so many times now that we know the lie of the land. It has a brilliant vibe, so you just want to give the audience everything they possibly need to have a great time."

Over the years, the band has built up a well-deserved reputation as an impressive live act, selling more than 150,000 tickets on a 16-show arena tour, Graffiti On The Train, in 2013, with a fresh set of live dates due to be announced for later this year.

Rich, 41, added: "We feel like we're still relevant in the grand scheme of things and we pride ourselves in being a great live band.

"We make sure the set list is full of the right songs and we try to give the audience what they want with as much energy and entertainment as we can put in there.

"I think for us, live has always been the point for us where we can show off. It is the self-indulgent part of what we do and it is where we can show the audience our catalogue of work.

"At festivals, though, it is not our crowd and a lot of people might have only heard the first two albums or the last two albums, so we have got to put the big songs in there to capture peoples' attention and draw them into what we do.

"If you're going to a festival, you go to be entertained and let your hair down, and I can't think of a better idea than going to see a great live band and just having fun with the rest of the audience.

"Festivals are about a big bunch of people getting smashed and having fun and we're there to help facilitate that."

One of only eight groups to achieve five consecutive UK number one albums, the Stereophonics' new album, released on September 11, has been written by lead singer Kelly Jones, and Rich says their relationship, which stretches back to their childhood in Wales 35 years ago, allows the band to take risks.

He said: "With every new album project, we are trying to find a little bit of ourselves that we hadn't hit on before, whether that is using different instruments or just performing in a different way.

"That is how we push ourselves and make ourselves as consistent as possible. It comes down to us being our own worst critics

"Kelly and I are so used to each other and can trust each other to make decisions. It's an unspoken thing where we both know what we need to do to make the band the best it can possibly be."

Kodaline get lucky

Irish rockers Kodaline are still pinching themselves as they prepare to play the V Festival. Bass player Jason Boland tells Claire Youell about the band's success

IT'S been a crazy few years for Kodaline. Having spent a few years doing the rounds in Dublin trying to make a name for themselves, under their old name of 21 Demands, the Irish band finally got lucky in 2012.

That was also the year that bass player Jason Boland joined the band – but he insists that was just a coincidence.

"Oh yes it as all down to me," he joked. "I had been in a couple of other bands and we were all playing the same places – there are only so many gig venues in Dublin. I wanted to join 21 Demands because of their great songs, and we were all aware of each other anyway and got on well."

The other band members are school friends Steve Garrigan and Mark Prendergast, who started 21 Demands in 2005 and their pal Vinny May.

"We started again as Kodaline and all the songs that were written around that time really shaped the new direction of the band," Jason said.

Very soon afterwards, they released their debut EP, The Kodaline EP to critical acclaim and tracks appearing on high profile TV shows like The Vampire Diaries and Catfish.

CLIMBING UP THE BILL: Kodaline are third billing on the MTV Stage

This was followed up in 2015 with Coming Up for Air.

Jason said they really accepted that things were taking off when they heard they'd been selected to represent Ireland at South by SouthWest (SXSW) in Austin, Texas.

"When you're a band trying to make it, going to SXSW is something you can only dream about," he said. "For me that was the first moment that I thought, 'this is really happening.'"

Another 'wow' moment came recently when Kodaline performed with Ed Sheeran at Croke Park – an awe-inspiring moment for the band.

They've been a festival favourite for the last three years too, climbing up the bill as each year ticked by. Last year Kodaline were second act on at V, but this year, they've got third billing on the MTV Stage, second to only Stereophonics and Clean Bandit.

"It's funny because a few years back we were at the bottom of the line-up at festivals and we used to get really excited but also worry that no one would show up," James said. "But at V this year we're got a good time, we're on early evening and it puts a lot more pressure on us as a band. We're still worried that people won't show up though."

While speaking to the go!, James and the band were on a rare 'break' from their tour, and were enjoying spending time with family and friends in Ireland. "We've been on the road since February," James said. "Once the festival season is over we go over to Japan and China, and then back to America. It will be our first time in China and we can't wait, everyone says it's nothing like what you expect it to be."

Every time they go home, there's one TV programme that every band member is desperate to watch, Gogglebox, as the theme tune is an early Kodaline record, In a Perfect World.

"It's one of our earlier songs and we haven't played it live for about two years, but we will do one day," James said.

"We just want the V audience to know that we're just having so much fun with all of our songs. It used to be that at every gig we had to play every single one of our songs, otherwise we'd run out. But now we can choose what we like and tailor the set list to who's been on before us and what the crowd is like. We're going to be having a bit of fun and we hope the crowd will too."

The property has the highest standard of fittings throughout. It offers accommodation across three floors as well as a spacious outbuilding with planning permission, a triple garage block, underfloor heating, air conditioning, a filtration system, self-cleaning windows and a gated entrance.

As you approach the front of the house you will be greeted by an impressive canopied entrance porch with a raised block pavior step, pillars and a multi-locking hardwood door which leads into the large entrance hall with views straight through to the rear garden and a contemporary open tread oak staircase to the first floor.

The accommodation comprises seven bedrooms, four reception rooms and five bath/shower rooms. The kitchen/family room features an insert sink unit with mixer tap and adjacent cold water point, base and eye level units, refrigerator and freezer, integrated dishwasher, spacious island unit incorporating drawers, a glazed breakfast bar and cupboards, granite worktops, an integrated microwave, double oven with extractor hood and four-ring gas fired hob.

A separate annexe is currently set up as a large laundry room and store.

The property's grounds extend to approximately one acre and have been beautifully maintained. To the rear there is a full width terrace with brick-retained nurtured lawns. The majority of the garden is laid to lawn with various mature trees and laurel hedging offering privacy and screening.

The property is approached via a pair of electronically operated gates opening onto a sweeping drive with a turning circle and a central Camellia Bonsai which is approximately 195 years old.

>with NIGEL LEWIS

Alexa Chung's fashionable flat

YOU could pack in a couple of hundred friends into this trendy open-plan home – in fact the en-suite to the master bedroom is so big, there's probably room to throw a party in the shower.

The riverside abode oozes glamour and has appeared in Silent Witness, hosted GQ fashion shoots and was used as a filming location by singer Jessie J. It's also where TV presenter and model Alexa Chung chose to launch her AG Jeans collection with celebrity pals Nick Grimshaw and Pixie Geldof.

The four-bedroom penthouse is slap bang in the middle of London, right by the Thames and behind the Tate Modern. At the top of the geometric NEO Bankside development, it has 360-degree views from all round the property and as there are glass walls throughout, you get a pretty spectacular nocturnal cityscape from every room.

On the market for a hefty £19.75m, it has double-height reception rooms and two private roof terraces, five bathrooms, a snug kitchen and breakfast room, as well as a discreet preparation kitchen for outside caterers. The exclusive, swanky pad was fitted out by interior designer Studio Reed, which has worked on homes for celebrities such as David Bowie and Elle MacPherson.

For the wealthy and security-conscious residents there's 24-hour security, CCTV and swipe card access. The development has a hotel-style concierge, ready to attend to residents' every whim, while there's also a private gym, business centre, underground parking and wine cellar.

There's even a Conran restaurant on the building's ground floor as well as a posh convenience store if you fancy a ready meal in glorious splendour instead.

Where life is one huge television set

FOR nostalgic TV viewers of a certain age, the Blue Peter garden will always hold fond memories – of tortoises, Petra's statue and Percy Thrower.

And although some of its contents were moved up to Salford a few years ago to create a new outdoor space for the programme, the original garden will still get plenty of admirers when it becomes part of a massive £1.5bn redevelopment scheme in the former BBC Television Centre.

The first 450 homes are going up for sale next month, where some of Britain's best-known programmes such as Top of the Pops and Fawlty Towers were made, with one-bed flats starting from just under £500,000 and six penthouses at the top of the building, which could fetch as much as £7m.

A new crescent-shaped outer building will wrap around the listed inner building where residents will have a gym and fitness club with spa, independent cafés and restaurants on the famous forecourt and overlooking the old Blue Peter garden, and a four-screen cinema. Soho House is also set to open a new members' club and 47-bedroom hotel on the site.

Alistair Shaw, managing director of the Television Centre redevelopment for developer Stanhope, said the flats would probably have a 1950s/1960s design, in keeping with the site's history and aesthetic. He told City AM that Londoners, rather than overseas buyers, were its key market: "We think there is enough demand from Londoners attracted by the authenticity of being in a historic building," he said.

The 450 homes in the first phase of the development should be ready to move into by 2017. www.stanhopeplc.com

Bridge over profitable waters

FANCY making money every time someone drives past your door? That's just what the new owners of this riverside cottage with attached toll bridge could enjoy.

Drivers have to fork out £1 every time they cross the Whitney-on-Wye bridge between Hereford and Hay-on-Wye – and an automatic payment barrier does all the work.

You'd even keep every penny you earned as it's one of only eight privately-owned toll bridges in the UK that are exempt from any tax, thanks to an ancient Act of Parliament.

It brings in about £100,000 a year for current owners Grahame Penny and Maggie Taylor. "We regard ourselves as custodians of an ancient monument rather than owners and have concentrated our efforts on the land around the toll bridge to create year-round support to keep the business going," said Taylor.

Since they took over in 2012, the pair have started offering fishing and canoeing on the River Wye, along with camping and café facilities to bring in even more income.

The bridge – which has only had four owners in its 240-year history – comes with just under two acres of land and a two-bedroom cottage, thought to have been built in 1780 and extended in the mid-1960s.

On the market for £850,000, the cottage has got three floors with a patio and conservatory, while there's also a timber kiosk, which is used as a kitchen/shop.

Agent Colliers International said the new owners could expand the business, as there's planning consent for a new house, toilet block, visitors' centre and four self-catering lodges.

Would you look good naked in this house?

TV presenters and fashion guru Gok Wan's house is filled with mirrors – hardly surprising for a man who's famous for getting women to face up to their reflection and love their naked bodies.

But it's a little unusual for someone who has struggled with his own body image.

An overweight child, Wan suffered from eating disorders, bullying, depression, and homophobia, but lost weight and ended up as a stylist working with celebrities including Damian Lewis, Bryan Ferry and Vanessa-Mae. He's currently a presenter on ITV's This Morning, with a clothing range in Sainsbury's and a successful Chinese cooking book and spin-off series.

He's completely renovated his Hampstead home since buying it two years ago and boasted to the Sunday Times that it only took four weeks to do all the structural work and redecoration. The secret? Keeping the builders sweet. "Turn up with £100 worth of pizza and it's going to save you 20 grand on bills," he told the paper.

Wan redesigned the three-bedroom house with dinner parties in mind and there's flamboyant peacock-print wallpaper in the dining room, where he hosts an average of two a week, spending hours preparing a dozen Asian dishes.

He's now upped sticks to Bloomsbury in central London, taking his collection of 160 pairs of glasses, and has just reduced the price by £300,000 to entice buyers – it's on the for just shy of £2.5m.

The Audi TT Roadster returns in third generation guise, aiming to build on the best bits of the first two models. Andy Enright reports

OPEN SEASON

The Audi TT will always be remembered as a coupe. That's an inescapable fact. Despite this, the contribution of the Roadster model to overall sales shouldn't be overlooked, the open car accounting for around 25 per cent of all registrations.

Since it first appeared in 1998, the TT Roadster has been a consistent thorn in the side of first the BMW Z3, then the Z4 and all generations of the Mercedes SLK. It's been available in front or four wheel-drive, with power outputs from a modest 150PS right up to the barnstorming 340PS TT RS model. In other words, it's had a very wide brief to fulfil.

That's not going to change with this third generation model. If the first generation car brought us some extreme styling and the second gen model improved the driving dynamics, this third stab at the formula looks to take the best of both prior cars while developing superior safety, refinement and efficiency. You wouldn't bet against it reclaiming its crown.

The engines and transmissions on offer mirror those of the coupe model, which means you can expect an entry-level 184PS two-litre diesel which drives the front wheels and will get it to 62mph in 7.2 seconds. Look beyond the black pump things get a bit more serious. The 2.0 TFSI petrol unit gets the same 230PS as the more powerful versions of the Golf GTI, but here you get a choice of front or quattro all-wheel drive. Both will hit a top speed of 155mph, with the manual front-wheel drive car getting to 62mph in 6.0 seconds and the S tronic twin-clutch quattro model taking a mere 5.3s. The top of the range is marked by the 310PS Audi TTS Roadster. It covers the standard sprint in 4.7 seconds and its top speed is electronically governed at 155mph. Here, the 2.0 TFSI engine produces 380 Nm of torque between 1,800 and 5,500 rpm. A manual transmission is standard, with an S tronic transmission incorporating launch control, which regulates maximum acceleration from a standstill, available as an option.

The TT Roadster features an electrically actuated fabric top. This roof features excellent acoustic and thermal insulation, with particular attention paid to the frequencies generated by the passing airflow. A thick fleece layer on the black inner headlining helps reduce the noise level in the interior by up to 6 dB compared with the previous TT Roadster. Compared to the coupe, the body of the Roadster has been modified to compensate for the lack of a roof. The windscreen pillars each conceal a second steel member in their interior, which in turn houses a solid steel tube. Internal steel ribbing ensures the aluminium sills have high-strength properties. Additional bracing reinforces the zones underneath the engine compartment and the luggage compartment, and connect the axle carriers. In other words, this isn't the typical soft-top blanchmange to drive.

The challenge for the designers of the TT Roadster is easy to appreciate. The signature styling element of the TT coupe has always been its roof, that bold arcing line with the turret-like glasshouse. Saw the roof off and replace it with a fabric structure and you lose that hallmark aesthetic.

Our suspicions that the drop top TT would continue to look a bit challenged with the roof up weren't deflected by the fact that Audi initially launched a batch of 25 photos of the car with not one featuring the hood in place. In fact, not a whole lot's changed in the roofline department. There's still a flat boot and then a rather abrupt tent of a roof. It's a lot less elegant than the job Porsche, for instance, has done on its latest 911 Cabriolet in mirroring the silhouette of the hard top car. Perhaps that was never Audi's aim.

That said, the third-gen TT is undoubtedly a handsome piece of pen work. The big front grille gives the car a meaner look and there are some lovely details. The fuel flap on the right side panel is the classic circle surrounded by socket screws. This shape is again reminiscent of the first-generation TT, although here there is no filler cap beneath the flap. This means that there is nothing to be unscrewed and the pump nozzle slots straight into the tank neck.

The interior is a real piece of work. Pure, clean lines dominate and seen from above, the instrument panel resembles the wing of an aircraft; the round air vents – a classic TT feature – are reminiscent of jet engines with their turbine-like design. The vents also contain all the controls for the air conditioning system, including seat heating where applicable, temperature, direction, air distribution and air flow strength; as an option they can also house small digital displays which show the chosen setting. The boot measures a modest 280-litres but the good thing is that folding the roof doesn't encroach on this capacity.

All versions of the TT Roadster come with Audi's MMI infotainment system and an electromechanical parking brake. Alongside the S sports seat with various leather and trim variants, options include the advanced key, hill hold assist, high-beam assist, the LED interior lighting package and front seat heating. The connectivity package features the touchpad-based MMI touch system. At the top of the modular range is the 'mmi Navigation plus' set-up with its flash memory, two card readers, DVD drive, Bluetooth interface and voice control system. The 230PS petrol and 184PS diesel models get 17-inch alloys as standard, while 18s and 19s are available at extra cost. Quattro models can be optioned with 20-inch wheels. The S line specification gets its own look for the bumpers, air intakes, grille, sills and rear diffuser, plus larger wheels and the no-cost option of 10mm lower sports suspension.

Pricing opens at just under £32,000, then rising to around £37,500 in the standard model range. How does that square up to its key rivals? Well, you won't get 230PS of Mercedes SLK or BMW Z4 for £32,000, that's for certain. To get a more powerful Z4, you'd need to pay over £37,000 and an SLK with 184PS starts at nearly £35,000. Game, set and match to Audi there then. Porsche Boxster? Think £39,000 for an entry-level car and £47,000 for a 315PS Boxster S which will compete with the TT S Roadster, albeit without the Audi's all-wheel drive traction advantage.

Audi couldn't exactly bring us a new TT without improving on the efficiency figures of the old car. It's not really the done thing. So it is that despite packing more power than before, the TT is a good deal more cost-effective to run. The diesel is naturally the star here, returning around 64mpg and emitting just 114g/km of carbon dioxide. Even if you opt for the punchy 230PS petrol engine, you'll emit just 140g/km – or 154g/km if you opt for an all-wheel drive chassis.

When the Audi drive select system is set to its 'efficiency' mode, the S tronic transmission decouples and 'freewheels' each time the driver takes his or her foot off the throttle pedal. As a result of its extremely sophisticated construction process, the entry level petrol-powered TT Roadster with 2.0 TFSI engine and manual transmission weighs in at just 1,320 kilograms. That's a mere 59kg heavier than a Mazda MX-5.

The TT Roadster is an extremely smart car and deserves to do very well. We can't help but think that Audi could have been a little more expressive with the car's styling, given that this was once one of the most extreme-looking cars sensible money could buy, but hey, we all grow old and ditch the fashion duds for sensible slacks at some point. What's encouraging about this car is that it includes so much into a package that doesn't compromise on the ideals of its predecessors.

It's light but feels built from granite, it's quick but returns the fuel figures of a supermini and, should you need it, there's always the reassurance of Audi's quattro transmission to offer a welcome safety net.

Of course, there will be some who claim the TT Roadster was a compromise to begin with. Whereas the BMW Z4 and Mercedes SLK were clean-sheet sports car designs, the TT began life as a strange amalgam of platform-shared parts and that hasn't really changed. Perhaps that's the genius in this car; that Audi's mix and match collection worked out better than the blue-sky thinking of its rivals. Who knows? What's not up for debate is that this one's going to do very well for the Ingolstadt crew.

End of the road for your vehicle?

Responsible drivers scrap their vehicles at an Authorised Treatment Facility (ATF).

Because only an ATF can legally scrap a vehicle.
That means any pollutants will be made safe before it's recycled in an environmentally friendly way.

What's more, for certain types of vehicle you'll get a DVLA approved Certificate of Destruction (CoD).
A CoD proves that the ATF has told DVLA your vehicle has been scrapped and so is no longer your responsibility. www.direct.gov.uk/motoring

ARIES MARCH 21 - APRIL 20

A fall out is not as bad as it first seems. Don't be afraid to pick up the phone and see if you can find some middle ground. Doing so on Tuesday or Thursday really can make all the difference. Media links in your work prove lucky and can help to take your career up to the next level. Flirtations at work get dangerous. Ring now to hear what I think you need from a partner.

TAURUS APRIL 21 - MAY 21

You haven't been making the most of the opportunities which are being offered to you and from Sunday you are limited as to how much longer others are willing to wait for you to say yes. Open your eyes and take off those blinkers. Aspects suggest you've been waiting for someone who would not do the same for you. Better treatment on Friday starts your heart. Call for details.

GEMINI MAY 22 - JUNE 21

Jupiter pushes you to ask for more from relationships, but this could well see some of you geminis asking for more than you actually want. Stop and take a moment to breathe Gemini. You're not in a race and what close ones have been asking for may not be ultimately what will make you happy. Honest admissions you make on Sunday help you realise what you need. Ring now for support.

CANCER JUNE 22 - JULY 22

Have you been making more of problems than is necessary or has a close one really behaved that badly? Only you can decide what your standards should be, but the mixed messages you have been sending off lately are confusing even you. Invitations you get from Thursday are your cue for peace talks, so make sure you accept. Ring now to hear how Saturn solves a financial dilemma.

LEO JULY 23 - AUGUST 23

There have been too many mixed messages from those you've been working with in your career and it would be a good idea to take things up to the next level and seek answers from those with a higher power. A flirtation from the past comes back into your life and this time they're willing to offer even more. Ring now to hear why this is a great month for promotions.

VIRGO AUGUST 24 - SEPTEMBER 22

Don't be too hard on close ones who have told white lies, as the aspects suggest that many of the signs felt they had no choice. They had been pushed into a corner. Your element of earth helps you to find common ground with close ones on Sunday, so use it to your advantage. The Sun clears the way for better working conditions from Tuesday. Call me now to find out about tomorrow today.

LIBRA SEPTEMBER 23 - OCTOBER 23

Your sign was not born to cope with things alone, but I can see quite clearly that this is what you've been trying to do. Time spent thinking about what you want from your long term future helps you to feel more like you again. Don't get in the middle of rows in the family which don't concern you or you could end up being the one left out in the cold. Ring now for a message from Neptune.

SCORPIO OCTOBER 24 - NOVEMBER 21

Acting on gossip is dangerous this week, as is repeating it. Family want more of your time than you're willing to give, but try to be flexible as there's a good reason behind their demands. Venus helps you make up your mind about a personal situation which has been going through a stale phase. Ring now to hear why travel and work promise you the success you missed out on last month.

SAGITTARIUS NOVEMBER 22 - DECEMBER 20

Working harder pays dividends this week and indeed for the rest of the month. You can impress even the most difficult of folk with your enthusiasm and ideas. Safe ventures you dream up on Sunday form the basis for a new and improved chapter of your working life. Use your element of fire to deal with that financial issue you've been ignoring. Ring now for inspiration.

CAPRICORN DECEMBER 21 - JANUARY 20

Regrets you have about past relationships are not as serious as you at first think, so try to back down and cut yourself some slack. You are a clever sign with ambitious ideas so of course you're going to have dramatic times. Aries and Virgos can help you clear up that relationship difference you're still licking your wounds over. Ring now to hear why this is such a good month for romance.

AQUARIUS JANUARY 21 - FEBRUARY 19

You wanted to make some extra money and now is your chance as you start to meet with those who hold the power to take your career up to the next level. Misunderstandings in relationships at the weekend must be sorted out before Tuesday or you may lose the chance to talk things through with them altogether. Ring now to hear why this is such a great year for family reunions.

PISCES FEBRUARY 20 - MARCH 20

No wonder it's been hard for you to think straight as it has been impossible for you to get any real quality time to yourself recently. Try to make you a priority. After all Pisces, if you don't think you're worth the effort then why should anyone else? News from far away gives you reason to take a well earned break. Ring now so I can help to boost that confidence of yours.

Tendo's Bears despair after grisly end in T20

One-day skipper slates side for flopping in quarter-final

by Oliver Harbord

oliver.harbord@hertsexnews.co.uk

ESSEX Eagles one-day skipper Ryan ten Doeschate admitted his side's 24-run defeat by Birmingham Bears in the NatWest T20 Blast quarter-final was "gut-wrenching".

The Eagles were dire in the field, with 21 extras, three dropped catches, a catch off a no-ball and several misfields allowing the Bears to post 189-5 at Edgbaston.

Despite 33 from Tom Westley and 32 from Ravi Bopara, Essex fell well short, being knocked out at this stage of the competition by the Bears for the second time in consecutive years.

And Ten Doeschate did not pull any punches in his assessment of his team's performance in the field.

He said: "We were poor in the field and we just had one of those nights that has happened too frequently."

"When you come up against a good side in a big occasion you get punished and we have done for being sloppy in the field and ill-discipline with the ball."

Blame

"It is gut-wrenching and although you never want to place blame, you expect your big-name players to turn up and I think too many didn't."

"Our extra count was terrible, we bowled a lot of wides and the no-ball wicket hurt us as well."

"A few of the guys got through their overs pretty cheaply, but you will find that there will be a lot of guys who are disappointed with what they have put up there."

"It looked like after seven overs and they only had 50, that we had some control over the game."

"We kept taking wickets, but we just didn't click."

A risk that didn't pay off for the Eagles was playing Graham Napier.

The veteran all-rounder had passed a fitness test before the match and had seemed to recover from a recent calf injury, but just seven balls into his spell he had to leave the field as the problem resurfaced.

"Losing Napier was hard," Ten Doeschate admitted.

"It was a selection decision between myself, Paul [Grayson], head coach] and the medical team and we have to put our hands up there. We wanted to give him every chance, we thought he would be able to get through his four overs, but he wasn't able to do that."

"He didn't really move very well from the first ball, and that is another thing which hurt us."

To salvage their season, the Eagles must now focus on the Royal London One-Day Cup.

Essex's final Group B match was held on Wednesday at Sussex Sharks, with qualification almost secured.

Ten Doeschate added: "That is all we have got left. We have played well in the 50-over competition and given ourselves a chance, something that we have done frequently over the last few years."

"It is just another chance to grab the quarter-final by the horns and get over this hurdle."

Lawrence's ton of promise has TV pundits excited

DAN LAWRENCE seized his moment in the Sky Sports spotlight to show English cricket that another exciting batting talent is developing at Essex.

Lawrence, who became the youngest Championship century-maker in the county's history when he hit 161 against Surrey at the Kia Oval in April a few weeks before his 18th birthday, earned rave reviews from the former England stars in the Sky commentary box – Nick Knight, Mark Butcher, Rob Key, Dominic Cork and Steve Harmison – by smashing 119 from 103 balls.

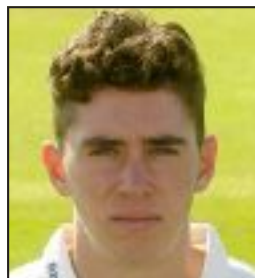

It was a new record for England's U19s in an one-day international against Australia, beating the 107 made by the former Yorkshire batsman Kevin Sharp in 1977 – and means that England are level in the Royal London One-Day Series at 1-1 with two games to play, despite a few nervy moments in their run chase after Lawrence's dismissal.

"I loved it, yeah," said the 18-year-old from Chingford. "It's a great privilege to play in front of the cameras, and under lights, and luckily it came off for me. It was a good feeling."

"In the last game I got a good 20-odd, felt really good and then gave it away, it was a little bit soft. I just tried to knuckle down and get the team in a good position to win the game."

He certainly did that, punishing Australia for dropping him on 27 by hitting 18 fours and a six with some breathtaking shots.

RISEING STAR: Daniel Lawrence excelled for England and has signed a new deal this week

Afterwards he revealed a winter in Australian club cricket with Geelong, paid for through the Graham Gooch Scholarship, had helped him to kick on this season – and now he hopes to go away again this winter with England for the U19 World Cup in Bangladesh.

"I was more happy with my bowling," Lawrence joked when he was interviewed by Butcher after being presented with the Royal London man-of-the-match award.

He had conceded only 15 runs with his orthodox off-spin delivered from a very unorthodox action.

"I get a lot of stick for my action," he agreed. "It feels normal but then when I watch it, it looks horrible."

Lawrence and England stay in the East Midlands for the fourth game of the series, at Leicestershire's Grace Road today (Thursday), before it concludes at New Road, Worcester on Saturday.

Meanwhile, Lawrence has signed a new deal with Essex that keeps him at the club until at least the end of the 2017 season.

He said: "I'm delighted to sign a new contract with the club. I'd like to thank Paul Grayson for giving me my debut this year, and to John Childs for all his guidance over the years in the academy. I'm always looking to improve, and I'm delighted to have the chance to do this at The Essex County Ground."

"This season has been a real learning curve personally, with the highlight being my century against Surrey."

Collingwood wants a long Cook reign

STUART Broad might have grabbed the headlines as England regained the Ashes but Paul Collingwood is adamant captain Alastair Cook deserves a share of the spotlight.

Heading into the Ashes, Essex's Cook was under intense scrutiny as he failed to lead England to victory in the West Indies after presiding over a 5-0 Ashes whitewash Down Under.

And despite making 96 at Lord's, where England suffered defeat, the 30-year-old's performances with the bat haven't been the strongest – he has scored 223 at an average of 31.85.

All this led to Cook considering his position as England captain, only to decide to continue in the role after the Three Lions' victory at Trent Bridge, which confirmed the Ashes would stay in this country.

And former England all-rounder Collingwood is delighted with Cook's decision, the Durham stalwart insisting the opener has earned the right to take England forward.

"Well, you can tell that the guys are enjoying playing for Cooky and that is a really important thing," said Collingwood, speaking at an ECB Club Open Day event at Elworthy Cricket Club.

"They've got smiles on their faces and are enjoying each other's company, but I think Cooky's captaincy has really been focused on taking the team forward and I think he has during this Ashes."

"I think Cooky now deserves the chance to keep captaining his country and it should be up to him as to when he wants to hang his boots up in terms of the captaincy."

Credit

"He deserves the credit of winning the Ashes and it's a difficult thing to do, to lead a team to win an Ashes series."

"I think he's done a fantastic job. I'm sure the ambition is to get back to number one in the world."

"With the young players they've got and such talented players, it really is exciting."

And Collingwood is hoping Cook can help England sign off from the Ashes with another victory at the Oval before they face Australia in one Twenty20 and five one-day internationals. "It's a totally different make-up of a team for the shorter format," he added. "Obviously, you've got a few guys out of the Test team that move into the one-dayers but players are used to it now, even if you play all three forms of the game it's something you get used to."

"Even in the county season you're exposed to changing formats so when you get into international it's pretty much the norm. The guys will be mentally drained from what has been a tough Ashes series, so their challenge is to keep their game to as close to 100 per cent as possible."

"It certainly helps when you're winning to be able to do that so England should be in a good position."

Billericay . . . . . 154-3
Town lost by seven wickets

HARLOW Town skipper Neil Gladwin was impressed with his side's fighting qualities despite a seven-wicket defeat to high-flying Billericay on Saturday.

Town, who remain third from bottom in Shepherd Neame Essex League Division Two, came into the match off the back of two crucial wins, which had virtually ensured they will play at the same level next year.

Gladwin said: "At the start of the innings we were targeting a 200+ score, but the way they bowled meant that we were always going to fall short of that figure.

"We should have posted somewhere around 180-190, so it's disappointing that two collapses saw us short of that figure.

"We knew it was going to be a hard day and so it proved, however, I was pleased with our attitude today and the way we kept fighting.

"We have three games left and are 42 points above the relegation zone. If we show this commitment for the remaining three games we will be fine."

Winning the toss, Gladwin had no hesitation in batting first.

What Gladwin hadn't banked on was an outstanding opening bowling display by both Andy Smith and Adam Marchant.

They bowled with incredible accuracy and movement, giving both Shiraz Ali and Jason Gladwin nothing to hit and both did well to survive such a thorough investigation.

Incredibly hard

But both fell to the new ball and things didn't get any easier for Ramya Upadhyay and Joe Holland, who also had to work incredibly hard to keep their wickets intact.

Marchant's 1-4 and Smith's 1-21 off were testament to how well they bowled.

Both batsmen managed to see off the new ball and when any loose balls came along they managed to get the scoreboard moving against the change attack.

They put on 50 before Upadhyay was bowled for 25, bringing Pat Yates to the crease.

Yates also found conditions difficult early, but with Holland finding his groove, the pair compiled another 50+ stand before the latter was adjudged caught behind for a wonderfully gutsy 65.

This sparked a middle order collapse as Town slipped from 115-3 to 118-6.

Yates managed to find the boundary rope on occasions and along with Dan Farmer they pushed the scoreboard along to 147-6.

However, the next four overs saw Town lose their last four wickets for the addition of just six runs as Yates skied a pull shot, then two run outs in two balls, and finally Dan Calver was bowled, as Town finished on a below par 153 off of 49.4 overs.

Some very close lbw appeals were turned down as Farmer, Owais Qasim, Upadhyay and Shaun Alderson bowled well, but a second wicket didn't fall until Billericay were on 91.

Town battled hard and fought to the end, but Billericay cruised past their score with just three wickets down after 39 overs.

MAKING A SPLASH: Karl Batorski competing at Sheffield

Swimmer returns in style after his ten-year absence

by Alan Scott

alan.scott@hertsessexnews.co.uk

HARLOW Penguins East Region Champion, Karl Batorski returned to competing at the highest national level after a ten-year absence in the British Swimming Championships at Sheffield's Ponds Forge Pool.

Batorski, 27, qualified for the event as one of the fastest 24 swimmers in the UK in the men's 100m butterfly.

Having qualified 19th, his target was to qualify for the final and swimming in the final heat.

Penguins club spokesman Martin Stringer explained: "He knew that he had to be at the top of his game to achieve that.

"In the race, Karl set the pace from the start and turned at the 50m mark in 25.24 seconds.

"Maintaining his stroke down the second length, Karl finished in fourth place in a new personal best time of 54.96 seconds, an improvement of nearly half a second on the time he set in winning the East Region Championships.

"A quick look at the scoreboard confirmed Karl had finished ninth overall in the heats and qualified for the evening final."

Different league

In the final, Batorski was competing against swimmers from the ASA's ITCs (Intensive Training Centres) at Loughborough and Bath universities, or the some of the big city clubs such as Sheffield or Plymouth.

"The training facilities they have available to them compared to those at Harlow Penguins are in a different league," said Stringer.

Undeterred, Batorski put in another outstanding performance, challenging all the way, finishing tenth and was cheered by swimmers in the club's junior squads who were allowed time out of training at Leisurezone to watch the event on the poolside.

"The effect on Harlow Penguins swimmers watching Karl's swims was truly inspiring. There are swimmers now actively looking to follow in his footsteps and compete at this level, he has shown the swimmers what it takes to compete at this level and he will take an active part in their development in the coming year.

"An amazing result for Karl and an inspiring performance for the club's swimmers to follow."

Hawks are caught out by Cray

BOSS Danny Chapman was baffled by the reason behind Hawks' pathetic surrender against bogey side Cray Wanderers on Saturday.

Harlow Town paid the price for a woeful first half with all four goals scored in this period.

Chapman said: "I couldn't quite put my finger on it. Their tempo was a lot quicker.

"We were on top of our game in the second half, but just did not quite have that quality in the final third.

"It was one game, the third game so I feel it's not the end of the world. We move on."

The Hawks had been strong defensively prior to Saturday, particularly with the addition of former Reading defender Ibrahima Sonko.

Cray went in front on 23 minutes when Andre McCollin finished off with a shot which went in off a post after a move down the left.

McCollin was a constant threat for the home side. But Harlow equalised on 37 minutes.

Joe Benjamin was brought down inside the box after he turned defender Adetayo Osifuwa one way and the other on the edge of the box, who then dragged the winger down.

Alex Read scored his third in three games from the penalty spot.

Niklas Freund made a fantastic save from James Duckworth.

But moments later Karl Dent put the hosts 2-1 up a minute before half-time with a cross that somehow found its way in.

They made it 3-1 on the stroke of half-time when Grant Basey struck from a free-kick on the edge of the Harlow penalty area.

Harlow were unable to score in the second half as the Kent side took a deserved win.

Chapman (pictured right) added: "Cray are a good side. There were a lot of misplaced passes from us. It was a bad day all round.

"What makes it more disappointing for me is that as individuals I know they are capable of much more.

"But it's not a crisis. We will work on things again in training."

Chapman felt only defender Craig Pope emerged with any credit. Harlow are now 12th in the table.

Running

Running club take over parkrun race

HARLOW Running Club were invited to take over the organisation of the Harlow parkrun 5K last weekend.

All the race volunteers were members of the club and several of them also participated in the run.

Daniel Jephcott finished in third place out of 140 finishers in an excellent 19min 34sec.

He was followed home by Alex Smith (4th in 20:33), Steve Mackenzie (8th and 1st Vet 50 in 21:08), Robin Lozeau (16th in 23:06), Paul Dixon (17th in 23:07), Peter Ayling (18th in 23:15), Sandi Rust (20th and 1st female in 23:23), Alan Cootes (25th and 1st Vet 60 in 24:10), Catherine Ridge (31st in 24:37), Brendon Maclean (33rd in 24:53), Terry Pike (34th in 24:54), Terry Ridge (35th in 25:22), Graham Saville (37th in 25:26), Richard Smith (43rd in 25:38), Alan Wellbelove (44th in 25:39), Ron Newton (60th in 28:33), Sheila Leach (79th in 31:01), Debbie Cooper (81st in 31:10), Pushpa Mistry (83rd in 31:18) and Holly Nairn (129th in 41:13).

Meanwhile, at the Hatfield Forest parkrun 5K Janice Page was 42nd and first female Vet 50 in 25:53.

At the AJ Bell London Triathlon Relay, where one athlete performs one of the three disciplines, Andy Ramage completed the 1500m swim in 33 minutes, Paul Lee the 40km bike ride in 73 minutes and Justin Patten the 10km run in 49 minutes.

At the Eastern Region Triathlon, Louise Kedge completed the 750m swim in 14:23, the 20km bike ride in 46:58 and the 5km run in 29:48.

Sloppy Harlow throw away bid for an upset

Rehmen rues collapse against big-spending leaders

Shepherd Neame Essex League, Division One
Hornchurch . . . . . 199
Harlow . . . . . 177
Harlow lost by 22 runs

A COLLAPSE did for Harlow as they looked to bring down Division One champions-elect Hornchurch and secure their fifth successive win.

The leaders have a massive wage bill and also feature 6ft 8ins batsman Paul Walter – but the Marigolds men produced a big performance of their own in the field.

Hornchurch were wiped out for 199, and this figure should have been surpassed, particularly as Harlow were 115-1 and 163-3.

However, once skipper Rehman Ahmed and experienced batsmen Ahmed Khawaja and Hafiz Yawar fell, the hosts could only produce another 53 runs.

Disappointment

Captain Rehman said: "I thought we bowled ourselves into the game. When I was out to lose the rest of the batting for 53 was a disappointment.

"We lost eight wickets for 53 runs. You are not going to win a game with a collapse like that. They proved why they are top of the table. They never gave up. They ran riot.

"We never played the spin well. There were a few dubious decisions but that's cricket.

"You play against top teams like that and they put enough pressure on the umpire, it happens. In the end we thought we could block out for a draw, but losing is a bitter pill to take – especially after winning four on the bounce.

"It was a game we should have won. We had it in the bag and we gave it to them on a plate. We kept them extremely quiet [batting]. We made it difficult for them to score. Luke Monger turned the screw and really dried the runs up.

"Hafiz [Yawar] bowled a lot better. We got the wicket of the big left-hander. He gets 80-odd runs every week. After we got him out I thought we might go through them. Normally 199 is never enough on this wicket.

"We should have scored the runs. We bowled 52 at them and they only bowled 42 back at us. It's the league rules but I don't think it's fair."

Earlier, Harlow won the toss and inserted their visitors.

Yawar (2-6 off four overs) was the stand-out performance.

In reply, Harlow got over the disappointment of losing the in-form Alan Jones for two, as Yawar (79) and skipper Rehman (44) put on 95 for the third wicket.

Although Harlow lost the prolific Khawaja for three, Conor Ramsey (28) and Yawar seemed to have things in control.

But then Harlow suffered a monumental collapse as they went from 163-3 to 177 all out.

The second team lost to Belhus.

From 33-4, Harlow recovered to reach 154 (Mitch Howarde 38).

Belhus seemed to be cruising to victory reaching 134-4, but then they suffered a mini collapse as they lost four wickets for just 14 runs.

Amir Farooq (6-48) was exceptional again, but Belhus managed to get over the line.

The third team got back to winning ways with a four-wicket win against Shenfield at Spicers.

Soulat Ali (3-30) and Muhammad Naem (2-43) restricted Shenfield to 182 all out.

Luke Close (3-12) and Danny Stone (2-49) also took wickets.

In response, Harlow openers Alan Burton (24) and Dave Rogerson (50) gave them the perfect start to the innings.

Naem (33 not out) helped Harlow to their target.

With three matches to go this win lifted Harlow back up to second and eight points behind leaders Chelmsford.

The fourth team (88) suffered a surprise defeat at Leigh-on-Sea (234-3).

The fifth team finished their season on Saturday with an eight-wicket defeat at Thundridge.

Golden Zoe's SEAA's finest

ZOE BENTON continued her outstanding season with a gold medal in the South East Athletics Association U17 and U15 Championships.

The St Nicholas student (pictured above) won her 300m hurdles heat in 45.06sec, before going on to win the final in 44.90.

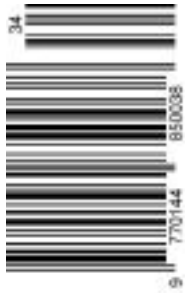

The 16-year-old, of Matching Tye, competed at the English Schools Championships in Gateshead last month.

She was fifth in the final in a time of 44.79.

Competing at the Julie Rose Stadium, Ashford at the weekend, the teenager showed she is one of the best hurdlers in the South East as she shone in the U17 girls section.

Zoe is a member of the East Herts-based Herts Phoenix Athletic Club.

A FREUND FOR LIFE: Hawks goalkeeper Niklas Freund has shown his mental strength

Rehman's joy at improving Harlow team

REHMAN AHMED is hopeful that his side can launch another promotion bid next season, after finally seeing Harlow's impressive challenge come to an end on Saturday.

On the back of a brilliant run of four successive wins in Shepherd Neame Essex League Division One, the Marigolds men mounted a late quest for the top two.

They should have continued that run on Saturday but threw the chance of victory away as the pressure got to them, losing by just 22 runs, with a couple of debatable decisions thrown in.

This defeat came against a Hornchurch side who will wrap up the title next weekend, and are said to have a first team playing budget of around the £20,000 a season, a figure Harlow cannot compete with.

It makes it all the more impressive that in his first season as captain last year, Rehman (pictured above) led Harlow to their highest ever finish in the Essex League (fourth).

Proud

They are still on course to better that this season.

The proud skipper said: "We go to Upminster next week. [The defeat to Hornchurch] has pegged us back for next week. We may stand an outside chance [of promotion] but it's in the other teams' hands now."

"But we peaked too late. If I am elected to stay on [as captain] I think the idea is to peak earlier [next season]."

"We were already out of it. The league is so strong. The teams have done the damage earlier in the season."

"Hornchurch are 60-odd points ahead. They only need a few more points and they have won the league."

"It was only my second season [as captain]. We got fourth last season which was the club's highest finish. It would have been nice to beat that. We are still pushing for third. If we can nick third I will be pleased with this year. There's some tough teams in this league, so to be in the mix has been good."

"At least we're not down the bottom of the table. We're near the top of the table. There's a silver lining there."

Hawks manager puts it down to German's efficiency

by Alan Scott

alan.scott@hertsexnews.co.uk

Robert Dyas League Cup, First Round

Wingate & Finchley . . . . . 1
Harlow Tn . . . . . 0

IT might be the German efficiency built into Hawks goalkeeper Niklas Freund, but boss Danny Chapman did not even consider dropping the custodian.

Freund fumbled at Wroxham just over a week ago when he came out to punch and ended up knocking the ball into his own net as the Yachtsman grabbed a late point.

But the 20-year-old son of former Spurs star and German international Steffen Freund was back in the line-up for Saturday's 3-1 loss at Cray Wanderers, before impressing in the narrow 1-0 reverse at Ryman Premier side Wingate & Finchley in the Robert Dyas League Cup on Tuesday.

"He's mentally strong and as long as Niklas can show that, it won't be a problem," said Chapman.

"He has worked very, very hard with our goalkeeping coach. For a 20-year-old he is very mature and he has great self-confidence."

The Harlow Town boss has completed the signing of midfielder Cyrus Gordon and he was excellent against Wingate.

Chapman admitted he had forced his way into his plans for Saturday's home match against Romford.

Maximum points

Harlow have picked up a draw and two defeats from their last three games, and Chapman has told his troops he wants maximum points from Saturday's game and Monday's trip to Barkingside to get their season back on track.

"I had set a target of ten points for the first five games and we will have that if we win the next two games," said Chapman.

With two goals in their last three games, Harlow have not been as prolific so far, but the Hawks manager is unconcerned. "There's always goals in our side," he beamed.

Against Wingate, the club where chief executive Tom Cunningham managed and which was co-owned by Harlow chairman John Barnett, the only goal came on seven minutes when Marc Weatherstone struck with a header from a corner.

Harlow had plenty of chances but could not score.

The best came late on when a Harry Prince header was superbly saved by the Wingate keeper, Bobby Smith.

"I wanted a reaction [after Saturday] and the performance was more important," said Chapman.

Meanwhile, defender Sam Holloway is closing in on a first-team start just six months after a double leg break.

He could feature in one of the next two games. "Our physio, Steve Newby, has worked extremely hard with him. It's fantastic after that injury," he added.
